The novel's protagonist is Tuff Sadie, a young girl who is tough as nails and always ready for a fight. Sadie lives with a group of other children in a hideout in the Wild West. The hideout is a safe place for the children to live, but it is also a dangerous place, as the children are constantly being threatened by outlaws and other dangers.

One day, Sadie and her friends are playing in the woods when they are attacked by a group of outlaws. The outlaws are led by a ruthless man named Rattlesnake Jake, and they are determined to kill the children. Sadie and her friends fight back bravely, but they are outnumbered and outgunned. Just when it seems like all hope is lost, a group of cowboys arrives and saves the children.

The cowboys are led by a man named Buckhorn, and they are a group of tough and experienced lawmen. Buckhorn and his cowboys take the children back to their ranch, where they are safe from Rattlesnake Jake and his gang.

Sadie and her friends are grateful to Buckhorn and his cowboys for saving their lives. They spend the next few weeks living on the ranch, and they learn a lot about the Wild West and the cowboys who live there.

One day, Rattlesnake Jake and his gang return to the ranch, and they are determined to get revenge on Sadie and her friends. The cowboys and the children fight back bravely, but they are outnumbered and outgunned. Just when it seems like all hope is lost, a group of Indians arrives and helps the cowboys and the children defeat Rattlesnake Jake and his gang.

Sadie and her friends are grateful to the Indians for helping them defeat Rattlesnake Jake. They spend the next few weeks living with the Indians, and they learn a lot about their culture and their way of life.

Eventually, Sadie and her friends decide to return to their hideout. They are sad to leave the cowboys and the Indians, but they know that they must return to their home. Sadie and her friends ride back to their hideout, and they are greeted by their friends and family.

Sadie and her friends are happy to be home, but they know that they will never forget their adventures in the Wild West. They have learned a lot about themselves and about the world, and they have made lifelong friends.
